Intro

HAPPY NEW YEAR!!

I hope you had a very happy holiday season! I definitely had a great time during the holidays.

If you didn't get a chance to stop by Diaz Gallery, "Migrations and Integrations" is still currently on exhibit until the close of the show, which has been extended until on Jan 31.

What's Up In My Art World?

The opening of "Migrations and Integrations" was fun and I was able to meet new and interesting people!! Thanks to those of you who were able to attend.

The Armadillo Christmas Bazaar was also a success, and I am truly grateful to Joe Swift and his wife Kay, who hosted my work in their booth. Both Kay and Joe were awesome to work with, and I anticipate that working with them next year will be even better!!

In the past few weeks, I have been working on commissioned pieces as well as more artwork for upcoming shows and exhibitions.

On Jan 17, my sister and I are meeting in Los Angeles so that I can take Los Angeles skyline photographs as well as some seashore landscapes. I am so excited to meet her out there! It's going to be a blast. We are going to try to get tickets to go see Ellen on Jan 21.

Artist Plugs

Recently, I have been on MySpace and have come across several really good artists. With each newsletter, I thought it would be fun to highlight one or two. If you get a chance, visit their pages.

Greg Davis

Traveling around this great big, exciting, lush, bustling, wondrous, lavish, friendly, beautiful, intriguing, humorous, spiritual, generous, adaptive, dangerous, creative, sincere, simple, and ever changing world of ours had been on my life list of things to do since I can remember. The opportunity to travel around the world presented itself to me in early 2004, I evaluated my choices, and ultimately made the decisions that would take my life down a very exciting path, one I had always dreamed of. It would be an experience that would always live with me, mine forever. Leading up to my decision, I spent many of my last waking moments each evening asking God for his help in leading me according to his will.

Eventually, things started to fall into place, one after the other; clearly pointing me to follow my heart. I accepted what was laid before me and departed in July of 2004 for one year. My mother has always said that prayers can, and will be answered if you believe they will. "Mothers are always right you know", at least that is what mine has always told me.
